CO-OPERATIVE SHIPPING IS GROWING HERE

Thirty-three Cows of Livestock Sent From County In Past Two Weeks.

The Pickaway Livestock Cooperative Association has been kept quite busy engaged in rendering service to Pickaway-co farmers on both incoming and outgoing shipments of livestock.

During the past two weeks the County Association has handled its patrons 33 cars of livestock. These shipments have represented five cars of cattle, four cars of finished cattle and one car of feeder cattle. This past week an unusual shipping service on sheep was rendered, showing four decks of sheep moved during this period. The remainder of the shipments were comprised of one floor of veal calves and 23 decks of hogs. Pickaway-co livestock producers are building a nice increase in business handled by the association over the same period for one year ago.

County Agent Lewis states that this local gain is just in line with the increase in cooperative livestock shipments throughout the state. A summary of state wide operations in cooperative marketing of livestock shows the following percent of gain secured this year as compared with the business handled in 1928:

The number of shippers, 24.1 percent; number of floors, 44.4 percent; number of hogs 66.6 percent; number of cattle 10.7 percent; number of calves 3.9 percent; number of sheep 1.1 percent; total market weight, 32.5 percent and net market value, 41.4 percent.

The fact that this summary shows gain in each classification is indicative of the confidence which livestock producers throughout Ohio are placing in their own cooperative livestock marketing association. These figures show tangible results in farm relief to the enterprising livestock producer who is taking advantage of the services afforded to him.

FLAG OF OHIO IS EXPLAINED

State House Custodian Addresses Chapel Session at High School Here.

Epsilon Mu Sigma English honorary society at the Circleville high school, led by Miss Louise Kuhlman, had charge of the chapel service Monday morning at the Circleville high school.

"Uncle" Doc Robinson, custodian of the House of Representatives in Columbus, was the main speaker of the morning. Naturally interested in affairs and customs of the State of Ohio, Robinson spoke on a subject dear to him, and scarcely ever heard of by many of his listeners—the flag of Ohio.

He described this emblem, in design and size, and said that it was 25 years old, and a replica of the Ohio flag. He told how in the world war, the emblem of the 37th Ohio division was taken from the center of the flag design.

There are no doubt many natives of Ohio who didn't know there was such a flag, or what it looked like. Robinson asked the students to place their state flag behind that of Old Glory upon every possible occasion. He invited the boys and girls to Columbus where he would give them a booklet on the state flag.

In addition to this talk which held the interest of the students, Peggy Courtwright sang "My Old Home," and Doris Peters, president of Epsilon Mu Sigma, spoke on the ideals of the club.

Washington as Model 'Bone Dry' City Of Nation Aim of President Hoover

Chief Executive Asks Details of Charge That Capital Is Very Wet.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 23.—Washington as the model "bone dry" city of the nation is the aim of President Hoover.

A White House statement replying to charges made on the senate floor by Senator Howell (R) Nebraska, that the president could stop the flow of bootleg liquor in the capital "if he desired," contained an invitation to Howell to lay before the department of justice any information as to "time or place" of violations of the prohibition law.

The president also promised to "have the matters vigorously investigated," if Howell would supply the information.

Howell came right back today and declared as he was not a drinking man himself, it would be difficult for him to give first hand information but he added that it is common knowledge here that Washington is as wet as many other localities since prohibition.

CHANCE IS URGED

The White House statement took occasion to point out that Howell had "seriously impugned the good faith and capacity" of one of the three district commissioners, Proctor L. Dougherty, who has charge of police matters; District Attorney Leo Rover, Superintendent of Police Henry Pratt, and William Blandford, prohibition agent for the capital.

"It is only fair," said the White House "to give to the district officials an opportunity to meet such charges."

By implication the president put up to these officials the proper enforcement of the prohibition laws, for it is the intention not only to secure the fullest enforcement in the district possible under the organization of enforcement agencies as provided by law, but to make it a model in the country," said the White House.

BELIEVES IN HOOVER

Commissioner Dougherty commenting on the White House attitude said:

"President Hoover echoes my sentiments."

District attorney Rover said: "All I have to say is that my office is doing everything in its power to enforce all laws."

Superintendent Pratt merely said his attitude on prohibition was well known.

Howell said his charges of lax enforcement here, in which he put it squarely up to President Hoover, was not for the purpose of criticizing the president.

"I think he is a real prohibitionist," he said. "But if I were president, I am quite sure I would make the capital quite dry. The president is general manager of the District of Columbia. He holds complete power."

SLAKE STOPS SUNDAY GOLF

Large But Harmless Reptile Causes Excitement At Local Country Club.

A black snake six feet long was killed Sunday morning on the rough of number five hole at the Pickaway country club. From a distance the sudden activity brought on by the discovery of the reptile looked like ceremonial dance with weird and intense side stepping and pushing forward of caddies and players as they surrounded the snake. Boulders were held high and heaved to the ground in the center of the crowd.

Then all would leap backward, soon to surge forward again. This was repeated several times, and as the members of the group stepped gingerly back toward the fairway, one or two remained who exhibited some excellent form with their mastic niblicks as they gave the finishing touches to the killing.

The snake was then tossed over the fence into the Pennsylvania railroad right of way where it writhed among the elderberry bushes until the sun went down.

It was first discovered on the fairway, where it looked so large as to be mistaken for a golf bag. Some of the members are of the opinion that the snake should not have been killed, as they eat gophers and other undesirable animals around a golf course.

To some fair golfers who approached the dying snake as it lay on the other side of the fence, it looked capable of swallowing a much larger meal than a gopher even a golfer.

BIG BUSINESS AND ITS BOOKS IN SPOTLIGHT

Income Tax Secrets and Opium Smuggling Enliven Senate's Tariff Fight.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 23.—(INS.)—The Democratic-Insurgent drive to reveal the income tax secrets of 700 leading industrial corporations and an effort to erect stronger barriers against opium smuggling today complicated the tariff war in the senate.

The financial secrets of the Aluminum Company of America, the General Electric corporation and the United States Steel corporation, along with hundreds of lesser lights in the industrial firmament, will be taken from their income tax returns and given to the public, under the treasury department's present program for answering the senate's demand for "tariff data." The senate finance committee meanwhile met to pass upon the treasury's plan, which would result in publicity on 26 different items in the corporation income tax returns.

BOOKS LAID OPEN

The value of each corporation's stock at inventory, its costs of manufacturing, the cost of goods it sold during the year, its income from special sources, such as dividends and rent, the salaries of its officers, amounts spent on repairs, and the total spent for supplies and wages would be made public under the treasury program. The senate already has asked for this "tariff data" from the returns of nearly 700 corporations, scattered through every state of the Union.

The finance committee may decide that some of this information is not required for the tariff debates. To that extent, the financial secrets of the corporations will be protected. Whatever is sent to the committee by the treasury, however, will become public property inasmuch as the coalition's purpose in requesting the "data" was to use it in senate debate over the tariff bill.

OPIMUM IS ISSUE

The senate, meeting an hour earlier than usual, ignored the income tax issue to continue debate upon the opium provision, written into the bill by the house in an effort to stamp out underworld traffic in the drug. The finance committee eliminated the provision but foes of the illicit drug trade carried their fight to the floor of the senate.

The old provision would assess heavy penalties against ship-owners, whose vessels were used by opium smugglers. If the shipowner subsequently proved his innocence, the provision would allow revocation of the penalties. With the provision eliminated, the government would have to prove the guilt of ship-owners—a task that has failed repeatedly in the past.

CARS COLLIDE, WOMAN IS HURT

Mrs. Flora Hall, Huntington, W. Va., Suffers Probable Skull Fracture.

Mrs. Flora Hall of Huntington, W. Va., received a possible fractured skull Sunday night at 8:30 o'clock when the auto in which she was riding with her daughter, Mrs. O. T. French, 557 Stewart-ave., Columbus, and a machine driven by Dr. Harry Brown of Chillicothe sideswiped on the Jackson-pk.

The accident occurred near the residence of Percy May. Neither Dr. Brown nor Mrs. French was injured. A passing motorist brought them to the office of Dr. Howard Jones who attended Mrs. Hall. She was later removed in the Mader and Ebert ambulance to the home of Mrs. French in Columbus.

Mrs. French had been to Huntington and was bringing her mother home with her for a visit. Their machine, a Gardner, was taken to the Circleville Motor Co.

John Smith, Circleville, was cut and bruised Sunday night when the Ford coupe he was driving overturned on the Adelphi road near the J. S. Smith residence. His three companions were uninjured. He was brought to the city hall by police who investigated the accident and was later removed to his home in the south end.

Intolerance Claims Another Victim

Standing in a pathetic group beside the grave of their mother, Mrs. Ella Mae Wiggins (inset) these five little children bid farewell to their loved one and must face the world as orphans. Innocent victims of a finger too quick on the trigger and the intolerance of political hatred. Mrs. Wiggins had been in charge of work among the children of the union strikers at Gastonia, N. C., and was killed when an anti-communist shot into a truck in which she and other workers were riding to a meeting. Yet the person guilty of the crime is unpunished and five little ones must suffer.

Son of Ex-President and Daughter Of Governor Will Be Married Today

Church Scene of Ceremony Uniting John Coolidge and Florence Trumbull.

By DAVID F. SENTNER
(I. N. S. Staff Correspondent.)

PLAINVILLE, Conn., Sept. 23.—A girl and a boy will be married today—the daughter of a governor, and a son of a former president.

They thought it would be a simple and quiet New England wedding but the world who loves a romance is peering over the shoulders of Florence Trumbull and John Coolidge.

The blue-eyed lass who might have been married in the White House with pomp and ceremony will hold the hand of her future husband at four o'clock this afternoon in the old Congregational church of her childhood.

Both Florence and John will say: "I call upon these persons here present to witness that I do take thee to be my lawful wedded husband (or wife) to have and to hold from this day forward, for better, for worse, for richer, for poorer success and in health, to love and to cherish, till death do us part, according to God's holy ordinance, and thereto I plight thee my troth."

A pretty ceremony amidst a beflowered chancel, a private bridal supper in the governor's mansion, a rice-swept dash through friends and relatives and then off on an automobile honeymoon for the new Mr. and Mrs. Coolidge.

800 GUESTS INVITED

The weather man has promised rain and overcast clouds for the day but there will be sunshine in the hearts of the young people. If the elements intervene, the 800 guests at the wedding reception will forego the gay-hued marquee tents on the governor's lawn and take refuge in the yellow-bricked mansion.

On the arm of her father, Governor John H. Trumbull, of Connecticut the bride will walk down the aisle in a gown of ivory satin with two panels and a train five and one-half yards long and four and one-half yards wide. The bridal veil was donated by the Coolidge family having been in the family ancestry for generations.

While the guests are assembling there will be a half-hour concert which will include the march "Triumphal," by Grieg, Wagner's prelude to Lohengrin, Elsa's bridal procession, the familiar "Ave Maria" of Bach-Gounod and just before the wedding march "Oh Promise Me" by Benjamin De Koven.

MAHOGANY SETS

During the wedding ceremony a vesper song of Mount Holyoke college, where Miss Trumbull went to school, will be played on the organ. It will be called "Whiteside."

Thirty Connecticut state troopers will guard the sacred environs of the church where the marriage ceremony will be celebrated and another 30 troopers will align themselves "behind the fortune in gifts which fill the governor's mansion."

Mrs. Calvin Coolidge has given the young couple a mahogany bedroom set while Mr. and Mrs. John H. Trumbull have given a mahogany dining room set of colonial design together with a small breakfast set.

The first half of the wedding ceremony will be performed by the Rev. Kenneth Welles, of Albany, N. Y., while the actual marriage ceremony will be under the auspices of the Rev. Roy Wilkerson of Plainville.

FRANK DAVIS IS DEFENDANT

Sheriff Served With Summons By Coroner In Answer To Bank Suit.

Sheriff Frank Davis had the unusual experience Monday of receiving a summons from the Pickaway-co common pleas court served on him by Coroner C. E. Bowers.

Sheriff Davis is a defendant in an answer and cross petition filed by Harry E. Weaver, receiver of William W. Fischer, bankrupt, in the case of The Third National bank vs. Elliott Crites, et al.

The answer and cross petition of Weaver obtained a restraining order from Judge J. W. Adkins preventing Sheriff Davis from paying to the Third National bank money received from the bankruptcy sale of an undivided one-half interest in the partnership of Crites and Fischer, which was engaged in farming and truck gardening near South Bloomfield.

The Third National bank has obtained a judgement for $10,000 from Crites and others on a cognovit note.

The court order restrains Sheriff Davis from paying to the Third National bank the money in his possession received from the sale of Elliott Crites' interest in the partnership assets and orders the sheriff to pay the funds to Weaver so that the money may be distributed according to the orders of the bankruptcy court.

SIN IS SAME, PASTOR SAYS

Dissipation Cause of Detroit's Study Club Fire, Rutherford Asserts.

"Sin is the same today as it was in the days of Adam, Noah, Jeroboam and John the Baptist. It is committed the same way. It is monotonous and has no new appeal."

This statement was made by Rev. W. F. Rutherford, pastor of the United Brethren church, in his Sunday evening sermon on "The Monotony of Sin." He declared that sin is a fact and hell a reality, with history recording it and human experience verifying it.

"Jeroboam," he said, "set the style in sin for generations yet to come and the human race has fallen into line."

"Gambling is the same now as it was in the days of the ancients. Profanity is so old and common that parrots learn to swear."

"The sin of dissipation has its own reward. All who indulge have the same haggard, harrowed furrows on their brows."

"When sin has done its work it brings death and the Study Club fire in Detroit is only another manifestation of this truth."

CLASS FORMED BY TEACHERS

"Educational Sociology" Will Be Studied In Extension Course Here.

Although organization of the extension class for teachers has been completed here with 14 teachers enrolled, members will be received until 20 have joined, according to word received Monday by M. C. Warren, county superintendent of schools from J. Floyd Dixon, of Ohio university, organizer and teacher of the class.

The first recitation meeting will be held at 5:30 p.m. Tuesday at the Corwin school building. The class is studying "Educational Sociology" and the completion of the course will give the class members two semester hours of credit which will satisfy the educational requirements of the state and of colleges. Additional credit in sociology will be given to those who have some credit in the subject.

After Tuesday, the meeting time probably will be changed to Monday or Wednesday and the hour fixed in accordance with the wishes of the group.

Miss Vin an Hudnell, who has been nursing her father, Albert Hudnell of E. Mound-st., went to Ironton Sunday to visit her brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd A. Leist.

FINE WEATHER CROWDS ROADS WITH TRAFFIC

Train and Airplane Also Account For Two Fatalities Over Week End.

(By International News Service.) With ideal "Indian Summer" weather prevailing, thousands of persons flocked onto Ohio highways during the week-end and today the usual traffic accident toll was compiled. This showed that 11 persons were killed in automobile accidents, one aviator lost death and a man was killed by a train.

At Monroe, Michigan, which is not far distant from the Ohio state line, six persons were killed in one grade crossing accident.

Probably the most tragic accident in the state, occurred at Columbus yesterday afternoon when two 13-year-old newspaper boys, Mathias and Leo Proverka, were run down and killed by a hit-and-run motorist, who made good an escape.

The one airplane death recorded occurred near Dayton when Lieutenant Mark H. Rodenbach, 34, was killed after his craft's motor stalled and sent him hurtling into the ground. An investigation is being made.

Akron reported two fatalities. Miss Bonnie Roebuck, 19, sustained fatal injuries when the motor in which she was riding crashed into a telephone pole. A 14-year-old youth, Elwood Thompson, was killed in another accident when his coupe overturned.

Cassius Burwell, 75, of Cincinnati, was injured fatally when he was run down by a truck in that city.

A four-year-old boy was killed and 12 persons were injured in Dayton's worst accident yet. The dead lad is Kenneth Brown, 4, who stepped into the path of an auto.

CRUSHED TO DEATH William Crawford, 43, was crushed to death at Bridgeport on the Ohio river when he walked in front of a street car on his way home from a ball game.

Frank Lindman, of Lima, while touring near Newburg, ran down and killed Ray Bailey, 6-year-old boy. Lindman was not held by police.

An armless man, Elmer Atkinson, 70 years of age, was run down and killed by an autoist on the National Highway near Cambridge. Another accident in that locality proved fatal to James McClain, 29, a motorcyclist.

When his father's truck overturned near Dover, 2-year-old Ruth Burdge was crushed to death.

William Grith, 35, of Magnolia, was killed by a train of Capitol, 10 miles east of Sandusky.

Miss Bernice Dearth, Miss Margaret Dearth and Mrs. Gladys Peters, were Columbus visitors Thursday and attended the theatre.

Advertised Goods Best

The reputation and power of advertising among the consumers are shown in the following letter, one of those received by The Herald in "Who's the Dealer" contest. The original is on file at this office.

"Advertised merchandise is best. We often say that storekeepers or owners of factories must sell goods to make money. In making goods he spends money and unless the finished goods were sold at more than they cost he didn't make a profit. In order to sell goods he must have them advertised. By this method he can sell more and in less time. By advertising the business is helping others and working together."

"I had an experience once when I advertised product when I was six years old. I met a man on the street and he gave me a white cap. It said Ask your Mother to make cookies with Gold Medal Flour. When I went home Mother read it and bought some flour to make some cookies. Ever since Mother has used Gold Medal Flour."

Income Tax Secrets and Opium Smuggling Enliven Senate's Tariff Fight.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 23.—(INS.)—The Democratic-Insurgent drive to reveal the income tax secrets of 700 leading industrial corporations and an effort to erect stronger barriers against opium smuggling today complicated the tariff war in the senate.

The financial secrets of the Aluminum Company of America, the General Electric corporation and the United States Steel corporation, along with hundreds of lesser lights in the industrial firmament, will be taken from their income tax returns and given to the public, under the treasury department's present program for answering the senate's demand for "tariff data." The senate already has asked for this "tariff data" from the returns of nearly 700 corporations, scattered through every state of the Union.

The finance committee may decide that some of this information is not required for the tariff debates. To that extent, the financial secrets of the corporations will be protected. Sheriff Davis is a defendant in an answer and cross petition filed by Harry B. Weaver, receiver of William W. Fischer, bankrupt, in the case of The Third National bank vs. Elliott Crites, et al.

The answer and cross petition of Weaver obtained a restraining order from Judge J. W. Adkins preventing Sheriff Davis from paying to the Third National bank money received from the bankruptcy sale of an undivided one-half interest in the partnership of Crites and Fischer, which was engaged in farming and truck gardening near South Bloomfield.

The Third National bank has obtained a judgement for $10,000 from Crites and others on a cognovit note.

The court order restrains Sheriff Davis from paying to the Third National bank the money in his possession received from the sale of Elliott Crites' interest in the partnership assets and orders the sheriff to pay the funds to Weaver so that the money may be distributed according to the orders of the bankruptcy court.

Paul Herman Childers and Min-lada Lyle, of Circleville; Elizabeth Anna Cromley and Vella S. LeMay, of Ashville; Howard Hartraft, Tarleton and Nelson Allen Crites, of Stoutsville, are among the 1100 freshmen and new students at Ohio university, Athens, which started its fall session Monday.

SIN IS SAME, PASTOR SAYS

Dissipation Cause of Detroit's Study Club Fire, Rutherford Asserts.

"Sin is the same today as it was in the days of Adam, Noah, Jeroboam and John the Baptist. It is committed the same way. It is monotonous and has no new appeal."

This statement was made by Rev. W. F. Rutherford, pastor of the United Brethren church, in his Sunday evening sermon on "The Monotony of Sin." He declared that sin is a fact and hell a reality, with history recording it and human experience verifying it.

"Jeroboam," he said, "set the style in sin for generations yet to come and the human race has fallen into line."

"Gambling is the same now as it was in the days of the ancients. Profanity is so old and common that parrots learn to swear."

"The sin of dissipation has its own reward. All who indulge have the same haggard, harrowed furrows on their brows."

"When sin has done its work it brings death and the Study Club fire in Detroit is only another manifestation of this truth."

CLASS FORMED BY TEACHERS

"Educational Sociology" Will Be Studied In Extension Course Here.

Although organization of the extension class for teachers has been completed here with 14 teachers enrolled, members will be received until 20 have joined, according to word received Monday by M. C. Warren, county superintendent of schools from J. Floyd Dixon, of Ohio university, organizer and teacher of the class.

The first recitation meeting will be held at 5:30 p.m. Tuesday at the Corwin school building. The class is studying "Educational Sociology" and the completion of the course will give the class members two semester hours of credit which will satisfy the educational requirements of the state and of colleges. Additional credit in sociology will be given to those who have some credit in the subject.

After Tuesday, the meeting time probably will be changed to Monday or Wednesday and the hour fixed in accordance with the wishes of the group.

FINE WEATHER CROWDS ROADS WITH TRAFFIC

Train and Airplane Also Account For Two Fatalities Over Week End.

(By International News Service.)

With ideal "Indian Summer" weather prevailing, thousands of persons flocked onto Ohio highways during the week-end and today the usual traffic accident toll was compiled. This showed that 11 persons were killed in automobile accidents, one aviator met death and a man was killed by a train.

At Monroe, Michigan, which is not far distant from the Ohio state line, six persons were killed in one grade crossing accident.

Probably the most tragic accident in the state, occurred in Columbus yesterday morning when two 13-year-old newsboys, Walter Mathias and Leo Proveys, were run down and killed by a hit-and-run motorist, who made good an escape.

The one airplane death recorded occurred near Dayton when Lieutenant Mark H. Redmonds, 34, was killed after his craft's motor stalled and sent his ship hurtling into the ground. An investigation is being played.

Akron reported two fatalities. Miss Bessie Roebuck, 19, suffered fatal injuries when the sedan in which she was riding crashed into a telephone pole. A 21-year-old youth, Elwood Thompson, was killed in another accident when his coupe overturned.

Cassius Burwell, 75, of Cincinnati, was injured fatally when he was run down by a truck in that city.

A four-year-old boy was killed and 12 persons were injured in Dayton's week-end auto traffic. The dead lad is Kenneth Brewsbaugh. He met death when he stepped into the path of an auto.

CRUSHED TO DEATH

William Crawford, 43, was crushed to death at Bridgeport on the Ohio river when he walked in front of a street car on his way home from a ball game.

Frank Lindman of Lancaster, while touring near Newark, ran down and killed Ray Bailey, 6-year-old boy. Lindman was not held by police.

An armless man, Elmer Atkinson, 70 years of age, was run down and killed by an autoist on the National Highway near Cambridge. Another accident in that locality proved fatal to James McClain, 29, a motorcyclist.

When her father's truck overturned near Dover, 3-year-old Ruth Burbage was crushed to death.

William Griffith, 35, of Mansfield, was killed by a train at Ceylon, 10 miles east of Sandusky.

Miss Bernice Dearth, Miss Margaret Dearth and Mrs. Gladys Peters, were Columbus visitors Saturday and attended the Ohio theatre.

Advertised Goods Best

The reputation and power of advertising among the consumers are shown in the following letter, one of those received by The Herald in "Who's the Dealer" contest. The original is on file at this office.

"Advertised merchandise are best. We often say that storekeepers or owners of factories must sell goods to make money. In making goods he spends money and unless the finished goods were sold at more than they cost he didn't make a profit. In order to sell goods he must have them advertised. By this method he can sell more and in less time. By advertising the business is helping others and working together."

"I had an experience once with an advertised product when I was six years old. I met a man on the street and he gave me a white cap. It read, 'Ask your Mother to make cookies with Gold Medal Flour.' When I went home Mother read it and bought some flour to make some cookies. Ever since Mother has used 'Gold Medal Flour.'"

CUB STARS IN BIG DANGER OF OVERWORKING

Spotlight Artists Playing In Every Game While Mack Regulars Rest.

NEW YORK, Sept. 23.—Paradoxical as it may seem, the Chicago Cubs may enter the world series handicapped because of the prevalence of stars in their lineup.

For now that the pennant is won, big men Hornsby, Wilson and Cuyler should, according to baseball custom, be resting on the bench while their less prominent comrades toiled and miled for games that mean a little less than nothing. As it is, Hornsby, Wilson and Cuyler, who have been playing day in and day out since the season opened, are in there every day.

All because they are among the leaders in several phases of the game and want to be there when the season ends. Hornsby is determined to lead the league in batting and home run gathering. Wilson is determined that he shall be the home run monarch, while Cuyler insisted on staying in the game in order that he may keep his base-stealing laurels.

'I COULDN'T CALL MY LIFE MY OWN,' SAYS COLUMBUS MAN

But Spinago Showed Mr. Michael Riley the Way To Health and Happiness.

Twenty years of suffering from indigestion, constipation, anemia and rheumatism and then health and happiness almost overnight! That is the history of Mr. Michael Riley who resides at 219 N. High St., Columbus. And what was the magic which dispelled this misery? What miracle took Mr. Riley off the invalid list and gave him a new lease on life? No magic, no miracle; it was simply a practical new medicine, Spinago. Because Spinago is a compound consisting of more than a score of well known and medically valuable roots, herbs and barks, each one performing its work both independently and in cooperation with the others, it can perform feats which seem almost like miracles. Because Spinago, the most important ingredient of Spinago, is the one food almost universally prescribed in diets for practically every ailment, this super-tonic cannot be repulsed by stubborn diseases.

MICHAEL RILEY.

Mr. Riley's case is not unusual. Thousands of others are now happy in the knowledge that stomach and bowel complaints simply cannot withstand the powerful action of this medicine. That indigestion, constipation, dyspepsia, rheumatism and neuritis quickly disappear when Spinago gets to work. That the blood is purified and enriched, the body given new pep and energy and brought back to normal weight by the use of this tonic of tonics.

"During twenty years of suffering from indigestion, constipation and rheumatism I could not call my life my own," says Mr. Riley. Pain and misery took all the joy out of living for me. I could eat nothing without fear of suffering. My appetite dwindled away and I lost weight day by day. Rheumatism rendered my arms and legs practically useless and sharp pains tortured me most of the time.

I was not idle during this time. I left no stone unturned to regain my health. One medicine after another I tried with no success. I grew more discouraged and almost gave up hope when I heard of Spinago. This medicine reached the turning point in my life. After three bottles all my troubles had passed. No more indigestion, constipation, no more rheumatism or pains arising from these ailments. I have gained my pep and energy. I have learned to use my limbs, enjoy a delicious appetite and am gaining weight every day. What more could I want?"

STOWAWAY IS AUTO VICTIM

Youth Who Flew In "Yellow Bird" Near Death Following Accident.

NEWBURYPORT, Mass., Sept. 23 (INS).—The fleeing fame that once was Arthur Schreiber's as a result of his foolhardy stunt in stowing away aboard the trans-Atlantic plane Yellow Bird, brought him back to the front pages today—but with an ironically different story.

For Schreiber, who laughed at the dangers of a 4,000 mile flight across the Atlantic in the fuselage of an airplane was today believed to be near death from injuries sustained in an automobile crash on Newburyport turnpike.

The young adventurer suffered a fractured skull when the roadster in which he and four companions were riding crashed into another car and overturned into a ditch. All Schreiber's companions, as well as the driver of the other car, were injured and taken to Anna Jacques hospital here.

Schreiber leaped into fame and no little condemnation on June 13 last when he stowed away on the French monoplane on its attempted flight from Old Orchard, Maine, to Paris. Forced down near Santander, Spain, the crew blamed the boy's added weight for failure of the flight. Schreiber returned from Europe unharmed and unsung. He lives in Portland, Me.

GILMORE AND MOORE BEATEN

Mack Mader and Karl Herrmann Will Battle For Club Championship.

Mack Mader and Karl Herrmann were the winners Sunday in the semi-finals of the golf tournament for the championship of the Pickaway Country Club. Mader matched against Moore in the next to the last elimination matches and Herrmann matched with Charles T. Gilmore, made two interesting 18 hole matches to decide the players for the 36 hole match for the championship.

The Moore-Mader match was not decided until on the 19th hole which was necessary after they were tied on the 18th. Mader won the hole and the semi-finals, on number one.

The Herrmann-Gilmore match was not so close, with the match ending on the 16th hole with Herrmann three up and but two to play.

To decide the championship, Herrmann and Mader will meet in a 36 hole match, which will probably be played next Sunday.

There were several matches of the second and third flights played Sunday. The results will be published in Tuesday's Herald.

AUTO AND TRUCK DAMAGED IN CRASH

Slight damage to the Hudson sedan of Country Auditor Bryce Briggs, and to a Sinclair Oil truck driven by Harold White resulted from a collision of the two machines Monday at 1 p. m. at Main and Court-sts. The truck going north on Court made a left hand turn into W. Main-st behind a northbound traction car. The Briggs car, going south on Court, and the truck collided.

The right running board of the truck was smashed and the bumper on the Hudson was torn off, but no one was injured.

The little Drummer of Bergerac

EVERY morning he parades the streets, rat-tat-tatting the gossip of the day.

He announces municipal orders, and auction sales; tells whose cow is astray, or child is lost, and what motion picture will be shown on the open air screen before the cafe on the Place D'Armes.

That's the way they get the news in Bergerac.

And that's why Bergerac STILL thinks in the mental ruts of mid-history and walks cobbled pavements laid when Black Prince Edward was sovereign in the land, and pence and pound, French coin.

Bergerac squats beside the Dordogne, among foaming eddies aching to drive turbines for mills and factories but left to sport with the monster salmon that leap its rolling waters.

The shoemaker sits before his door, cobbling hand-made boots; the carpenter adzes beams and furniture as his fathers wrought for a dozen centuries.

Bergerac was old when William the Norman raped a crown, and his returning ghost would find much unchanged there since that day.

THE ELEMENTS OF PROGRESS

When cities and towns go ahead, a number of factors enter in to accomplish this result. Some of them advance because of fortunate circumstances, without much effort. But that is unusual. In the main the growth and development of a community depend mostly on whether its people have certain qualities and traits.

What are these qualities and traits? The following might be mentioned as specially important.

1.—The possession of a group of people who are willing to give a considerable amount of time in a public spirited way, to promoting good causes in the community, including business advance.

2.—A general willingness to co-operate on the part of the people, which calls for interest and receptivity when progressive ideas are suggested.

3.—The absence of the carping and knocking spirit that slows down attempts to accomplish improved results.

4.—A considerable spirit of enterprise and ambition among the business men and possessors of capital, which makes them willing to start new undertakings, and to constantly make improvements in the work they are carrying on.

It will be noticed that two of these characteristics call for leadership among people of some prominence in the community, while the remaining two call for co-operation among the rest of the people.

Where the great mass of the people are willing to co-operate and help on public movements by friendly support, it is apt to happen that leadership will develop among those capable of exercising the same. There are always people who will go ahead and do things with efficiency, if the mass of the people will give them good support. Circleville people should ask themselves if they are giving their full support and co-operation in matters that concern their city.

Trace Origin of Gypsies to Northwestern India

The race of gypsies is now a very much mixed one, with elements of the blood of all of the countries in which they have resided; and gypsies from one part of the world may present characteristics and appearances quite different from those of another part. The English word gypsy reflects the old belief of many countries that the gypsies were Egyptians. In other countries they were called Tartars. The old agreement of the traditions concerning them was that they had come to Europe out of the East.

Modern inquiry has revealed a good deal of their time history, however, and has established that the race is originally from northwestern India. Bands of the inhabitants of this region were driven away from their homes and set wandering by hordes of northern invaders which swept down upon them in the Ninth century.

These forerunners of the modern gypsy moved into Kabulistan and Persia, and ultimately filtered through Syria into Egypt and northern Africa and thence through Turkey into Europe. There are now fourteen or more distinct dialects of their language in European countries—indicating their widespread distribution.

Dunmow Fitch Traced to Ancient Cereyry

Father Ronald Knox wrote an amusing preface to the program for the Dunmow Fitch celebration, which is held annually at Bford, England. "I have never been married," he wrote, "so I cannot tell what are the probabilities of your having deserved the fitch. I can only say that if you have deserved it, yours must be a tame sort of life, for which a whole sausage factory would not sufficiently compensate." Father Knox traces back the origin of the fitch to the ancient days of marriage by capture. "On the occasion of the wedding," he writes, "we must suppose a marriage treaty would be struck by the sacrifice of a pig. The ceremony was performed by the bridegroom, hence the custom that the bridegroom should cut the first slice of the wedding cake. Originally, no doubt, the wedding cake was an offering of meat supposed to represent a pig. The carcass of the pig became the property of the bride's father. If the wife did not prove satisfactory to her husband he would go to her father and demand to have his pig back. Originally, then, the Dunmow Fitch must have been awarded in view of unhappy, not of happy marriages."

Community Scheme Fizzle

The Brook farm was a community project in 1841 near Roxbury, Mass., by George Ripley and his wife. An association was formed with a few stockholders, and a farm of 200 acres purchased. The object was to promote the benefits of society according to the principle of co-operation. The life led was very simple, and every one had a share of the work, receiving a certain rate of pay. The products of the farm were sold. A school was maintained for the children. A number of prominent people were in the scheme, among them Nathaniel Hawthorne, Charles A. Dana, John S. Dwight, George P. Bradford, Ralph Waldo Emerson, Amos B. Alcott, Theodore Parker, George W. Curtis and Margaret Fuller. After a time, however, enthusiasm waned, and as a result of financial loss the scheme was dissolved in 1847.

Interesting Exhibits

The world's oldest paper money, in reality a sort of letter of credit, issued in 1661 by a private banker in Stockholm, was sent from Sweden to Amsterdam for exhibition at the International economic exposition. Prior to that time the Swedish currency consisted mostly of copper coins which gradually became so large that they were unwieldy. The largest known weighed about 40 pounds. Another odd exhibit in the Swedish section was a collection of 2,000 match boxes, each with a different label, to illustrate the wide distribution of Swedish safety matches. Actually over 9,000 different designs are in use to suit the various local markets, but the boxes are all of the same standard size.

Ostentation

Peter Gaskell, millionaire socialist, said in a lecture in Boston: "Wealth, after all, is chiefly prized for the ostentation and display it lends itself to. Wealthy people in their hearts are very much like Newrich."

"Newrich attended a wedding breakfast with an enormous new diamond in his necktie. Nobody complimented him on the beauty of the stone; though he kept adjusting his necktie nobody appeared even to notice it; so finally he rose from his chair and addressed the bride and groom in loud tones. "May your wedded life," he said, "be as bright and pure as this." "And he tapped the diamond with his forefinger."

Comparative Riches

There is a story of a man whom others called poor and who had just enough fortune to support himself in going about the country in the simplest way and enjoying the life and beauty of it. He was once in the company of a great millionaire, who was engaged in business, working at it daily and getting richer every year, and the poor man said to the millionaire: "I am a richer man than you are." "How do you make that out?" said the millionaire. "Why," he replied, "I have got as much money as I want and you have not."

Blue Blood And Red

by ROBERT TERRY SHANNON

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE. Eddie Regan, once a member of a New York gang, has escaped to Virginia, where he meets Marian Thorndike, a girl who is in love with him. Eddie is a member of a New York gang, and Marian is a girl who is in love with him. Eddie is a member of a New York gang, and Marian is a girl who is in love with him. Eddie is a member of a New York gang, and Marian is a girl who is in love with him.

CHAPTER XV. FREEMAN turned his high-colored face unsmilingly to Eddie.

"Why didn't you call up her folks?" he demanded. "How long have you had her here in your house, anyway?"

"She's been all right here," Eddie said, quietly.

"I was shaken up a bit, Tom, and I thought I would just rest here a while before Mr. Regan took me home," Marian explained. "It was thoughtful of me not to call up the house but I reckon I wasn't quite myself."

"Now, I guess you weren't," Tom Freeman told her, his voice dissatisfied. "Well, if you are able to move I've got my car out here."

"Oh, I am all right," Marian said. "I'm not really injured."

"We'll get you home and find out about that."

Eddie felt uncomfortable. "You needn't bother Mr. Freeman," he said. "I'll take her home in my buggy. I was just going to anyhow."

The look that Tom Freeman gave him was coldly contemptuous. "You just think you'll take her home," he turned again to Marian. "Come on, I'll help you out to the car, Marian."

He stood beside her waiting for her to make a move to rise, but she was motionless and looked up at him with faint uncertainty on her face.

"I don't think—I think I had better ride home with Mr. Regan, Tom. He's been so nice to me and he was just going out to hitch up the horse."

"You're going home in my car," Freeman said, decisively.

An instinctive dislike of the man took hold of Eddie's mind. "You're wrong about that, Mr. Freeman. I think my buggy will ride a little bit easier than your automobile. You can drive on ahead if you want to and tell her folks that I'm bringing her home."

Definitely, now, Freeman turned and faced Eddie; his eyes looked up and down the length of the stranger from the North. They were both near the same age, but Freeman was twenty-five pounds, at least, heavier.

"Listen, Colonel, I don't want to get into any argument with you. Eddie met his stare unwaveringly. "I'm not a Colonel and there's not going to be any argument," he stated. "I'm simply going to take Miss Thorndike home myself unless she prefers to go with you."

Marian got to her feet a little stiffly.

THEATRES

SPARKLING COMEDY

Seldom has any audience had such a good time watching a motion picture as the Met theater audience had Sunday while watching the marital adventures of Ruth Chatterton and Clive Brook in Paramount's all talking comedy drama, written by W. Somerset Maugham, "Charming Sinners." The delightful, comedy drama will play a three day engagement at the Met theater.

A sparkling, intimate story of married life, beautifully acted by a group of outstanding cinema stars, made of "Charming Sinners" a particularly lively and entertaining show. Smart dialog, clever repartee, smashing climatic situations keep audiences on the "qui vive" throughout the play. It is a new revelation in talking screen entertainment.

Ruth Chatterton, as the wise wife, tired of her husband's philandering, decides to punish him, once and for all. She chooses the dignified method of repaying him in his own coin by pretending to give her affections to an old admirer, William Powell. She fools her husband in clever fashion, reawakens some of the romance which appeared dead to her forever and brings about a re-adjustment in her home which no amount of scandal or ranting could accomplish. Clive Brook, as the husband, reveals new talents in a splendid characterization. Mary Nolan, as the "other" woman, is delightful.

A group of auxiliary players, recruited from the stage, including Laura Hope Crews, Florence Eldridge and Juliette Crosby, are artfully cast.

PLAYERS PROTECTED

It took a Coast Guard cutter to protect Greta Garbo and Nils Asther from the follia of souvenir hunters and autograph fans that swarmed about the yacht "All Alone" when they were making sea scenes for "The Single Standard," a Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer production, now playing at the Cliftona Theater, with a synchronized sound score.

Visiting boats of all kinds constantly hovered about the floating location and so hampered maneuvering activities that the Coast Guard took a hand and ordered the other ships to stand clear of the big schooner.

John S. Robertson directed the picture from Adela Rogers St. John's sensational novel with Johnny Mack Brown, Dorothy Sebastian, Lane Chandler, Kathryn Williams, Robert Castle and others of note featured in the cast.

"The Single Standard" features two leading men, one an artist-adventurer, played by Asther, with whom Miss Garbo falls in love, and the other, a young business man of San Francisco, played by Johnny Mack Brown, whom she marries. The story is highly romantic and unconventional in a fascinating manner.

FOX FOLLIES ON SCREEN AT GRAND

Movie fans are enjoying one of the greatest pictures ever seen in Circleville, with the Fox Movie one Follies opening at the Grand Theater Sunday and continuing Monday and Tuesday. This play has been acclaimed by music critics to be one of the best productions ever flashed on the screen.

America's greatest beauty crop passes in revue in the most luxurious amusement ever devised for stage and screen. In this picture the hilarious Harlem Night Club is brought before your eyes in a most vivid way. The snappy frolics on the seashore, the rip roaring school room antics and the glittering Fifth Avenue Promenade are featured in the play.

John Brendon, Lola Lane and Sue Carol star in the production together with many other well known Fox artists.

KONJOLA ENDED STOMACH MISERY AFTER 15 YEARS

Happy and Healthy Lady Describes Amazing Relief Master Medicine Gave Her: Kidney Trouble Banished, Too.

MRS. JOHN LAYMAN.

"I had been suffering for fifteen years from stomach and kidney disorders," said Mrs. John Layman, Luckey, Ohio. "After each meal quantities of gas formed that caused wild heart palpitation. Constipation added greatly to my suffering. The rundown condition of my health was becoming more pronounced each day."

"However, I had been reading so much about Konjola that I decided to give it a trial. Today I am well and happy. I eat better, sleep better and feel better. My stomach has been restored to a natural condition. All gas bloating and belching spells are ended. At the same time this medicine regulated my bowels. Konjola has exceptional merits and I recommend it to all sufferers."

Konjola is sold in Circleville, Ohio, at the Hamilton & Ryan drug store, and by the best druggists in all the towns throughout its entire section.—Adv.

Reason for Popularity of Pigeons in Venice

Perhaps by rights it ought to be a water bird that Venetians cherish as the special pet of their city in the sea, but it isn't. The bird of Venice is the blue rock pigeon. The city is full of them. Their special haunt is St. Mark's square. Here there are always hundreds of them, and at two o'clock in the afternoon, when the city officially feeds them, they fly in from all parts of the city by the thousand.

The tourist in Venice has not done the usual thing unless he spends a little time feeding the pigeons on St. Mark's square. They are so tame they light on your hand and shoulders and eat out of your hand, sometimes three and four at a time.

The story is that when centuries ago the army of the republic of Venice caused the downfall of Constantinople, it was a blue rock pigeon which brought the glad news of victory to the Venetians. Whether the tradition be true or not, the blue rock pigeon has found for many generations a safe and happy home there.—Florence Clark

Paper Has Kept Growth

In the United States the history of paper is the history of the country. When the Revolutionary war broke out there was hardly enough paper available to wad the guns of the soldiers or upon which to write the orders of their officers. There was virtually no paper. By 1810, however, the use had increased to about one pound per capita per year. It had grown to over eight pounds in 1850. The Civil war greatly accelerated consumption, which reached 25 pounds in 1870. In 1892 it was 57 pounds; in 1923, 150 pounds, and today the people of the nation annually consume more than their own weight in paper.
